About Us

Bulawayo Projects Centre (BPC) is a leading hub for Technical and Vocational Education and Training (TVET) and micro enterprise development services in Zimbabwe, operating as a PVO in waiting, in line with the new PVO Act. Under Zimbabwean law. With over 30 years of proven experience and measurable impact, BPC empowers youth, women, smallholder farmers, and emerging entrepreneurs to acquire market driven skills, access enterprise incubation, and build sustainable livelihoods. Our work drives innovation, strengthens local economies, and fosters resilient communities.

Our Location

Based in the heart of Bulawayo, Zimbabwe, BPC operates through five strategically located vocational and business incubation hubs in high-density suburbs. These hubs extend our reach to both urban and rural communities across Zimbabwe, ensuring accessibility for those who need our services most.

What We Do: Core Expertise

BPC's core competencies lie in Technical and Vocational Education and Training (TVET) and enterprise development. We deliver market driven vocational and digital skills, foster employment creation through incubation and business development services, and strengthen financial literacy and inclusion.

Our programmes integrate life skills and youth programming, advance climate smart enterprises in renewable energy and recycling, and promote micro farming and sustainable agriculture. Through Village Savings & Lending Associations (VSLA), we embed financial resilience and community based enterprise growth.

Strategic Partnership Driving Impact:

BPC thrives on a strong network of partners that amplify the reach, quality, and sustainability of our programmes. Working with local authorities, government line ministries, community organisations, churches, private sector, development partners, and academic institutions, we align with national priorities, foster innovation, and deliver measurable impact. These collaborations enable us to accelerate skills development, catalyze enterprise growth, and build resilient communities across Zimbabwe.

Our Impact:

Each year, BPC delivers measurable change across communities. We train over 1,000 youth and women in vocational skills and digital skills, support 500 entrepreneurs through mentorship, business coaching and incubation, and empower 1,000 smallholder farmers with improved practices. Our initiatives promote climate smart enterprises, financial inclusion through savings groups, youth peer learning hubs, and sustainable pathways for livelihoods and resilience.

Our Sustainability Model:

BPC ensures long term impact through a diversified approach that combines capacity building, community ownership, and revenue generation. We train local facilitators and master craftsmen to sustain skills transfer, foster partnerships with local authorities, private sector, and development partners, and promote cooperatives and savings groups for resilience.

Affordable training fees, workspace rentals, and consultancy services provide revenue streams that secure financial sustainability and strengthen institutional capacity.
